

The conclusion is that...

- The increased use of LARC among young women is probably a result of the change in the National guidelines 2014 (Medical product agency) to increase the use of the more effective long active products (especially IUS and IUD) in combination with the price.
- The publicity associated with the beginning of a new reimbursement may have given a greater interest in all hormonal contraceptives.
- Previous campaigns from society in combination with a decision to change the costs, may have increased use.
- Fear of hormones may have an impact which may negatively affect the influence of reimbursements.
